We Pay the Taxes and We Want the Facts

AN OPEN LETTER TO PRES. ROOSEVELT:

THE AMERICAN public pays the taxes and it wants the facts.

We are sick of getting our news second-hand from British journalists.

We want the facts of this war from our own American correspondents and from our own American sources.

Why must the American people rely on British sources for American war news?

Why do London or Australia or Canada give us first news on such startling events as sea battles attending movement of giant U. S. convoys to the Far East; establishment of a great U. S. base in Eritrea; arrival of the first U. S. troops in Ireland; arrival of the first American forces in London; news of the Atlantic charter meeting, where the President of the United States and Britain's Prime Minister Churchill laid down the rules of war for the world?

Why were British photographers and correspondents given all the breaks on that Atlantic charter meeting?

Why do we get such news as the creation of the United Nations general war staff first from Premier Curtin of Australia?

Why did first news of the Aruba sinkings come from Dutch sources instead of from our own military authorities stationed there?

The American people want to hear directly from American sources news about great events bearing on the lives of their sons.

We want the news first and we want it from our own correspondents and from our own Army and Navy communiques.

And, while we're at it, we want accurate news, not the mismanaged misinformation such as marked the recent air raid scare on the West Coast.

EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN.

If YOU, the American taxpayer, who foots all the bills, subscribe to these statements, you are invited to send this letter, or one of your own, to the President, White House, Washington, D. C.

JAVA RADIO QUITS

'Good-by--Long Live the Queen'

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—The official Java radio service going off the air today said:

"We are now shutting down. Good-by 'till better times. Long live the queen!"

The announcement indicated the seven-day-old battle of Java may have reached a supreme crisis.

This message, announced by Aneta, Dutch news agency, was received in New York at 7:55 a. m., Eastern War Time but not issued until 1:49 p. m., by Aneta.

The dramatic broadcast followed 13-hour-old dispatches from Ban-

YANKS IN NEW SEA, AIR BATTLES

LONDON, March 7 (INS)—A dramatic description of a huge convoy bearing American fighting men and war materials to "help in the battle of the southwest Pacific" was published by the London Daily Mail today.

Signed by Walter Farr who is accredited to the United States Pacific fleet, the report was sent from an American warship accompanying the convoy.

A British reporter with the American war fleet in the Pacific, is first to reveal gigantic naval battles now in the making. Full text of his dispatch sent from a U. S. warship is printed herewith.

"We are several thousand miles out toward enemy waters," Farr wrote.

"A group of unidentified planes has flown past us at a great distance.

"We have picked up reports indicating enemy submarines may be near. Our crews are keyed to instant action.

"We are plunging through the sun-drenched Pacific and can see spreading in every direction the great convoy carrying American troops, pilots, planes, tanks and guns to help in the battle of the Southwest Pacific.

"These massive forces will not only help defend Australia. They are taking with them large quantities of materials to be used to build up the foundations for a great offensive against the Japanese.

"The Japanese will live to regret Pearl Harbor. Every ship is a load of concentrated hitting power.

"The ships are carrying hundreds of the finest pilots America can produce, powerful units trained in landing operations, hardy infantrymen from the plains, mechanized equipment and the latest and most deadly type of fighter planes.

"The men of the new AEF are filled with tremendous eagerness to get at grips with the Japs. They stand on the decks in their life jackets for hours.

"We are taking no chances. This warship carries planes, designed to deal with submarines, which fly far ahead, looking for trouble.

"Those who are wondering what the American fleet is going to do had best listen to the captain of this ship, who said:

"'Just stick around here a while, and you'll see plenty of action.'

"You won't hear immediately about these naval actions . . . because to announce them would help the enemy.

"It is a strange, eerie kind of war in which the superiority of the American cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers and personnel is slowly beginning to tell. Every naval officer here is careful not to underestimate the Japanese and is convinced it is going to be a long, hard battle.

"The most popular tune of this trip, played over and over again on radios and phonographs aboard is, 'There'll Be Bluebirds Over the White Cliffs of Dover.' Somehow it seems to fit in with this mighty American convoy. It links us with the battle of Britain.

"Today I climbed into one of the catapult planes and was catapulted into the air by the launching machines, one of the Navy's most ingenious devices for launching planes from ships. It is now as routine as launching a boat.

"The American Navy has developed catapults to such a high degree that you scarcely feel any shock as the amazing machine flies you overboard.

"For hours we roamed great distances over the ocean ahead. Our ships have sighted no enemy—only American ships carrying more planes to the southwest Pacific.

"Our pilot decided to put in some practice flying. He suddenly climbed to a high altitude and dove at top speed.

"'You can see how easy dive bombing is, and what a large target a battleship or any big ship is,' the pilot said.

"You certainly get that impression as you sit in a dive bomber. Shiploads of planes, fighting men and powerful escort vessels seem completely at the mercy of this single plane.

"As the convoys move westward along the closely-guarded lifeline to Australia, the Japanese are shooting out great tentacles of naval and air power.

"In some areas the tentacles consist of long-range submarines. In other areas they are made up of aircraft carriers, loaded with powerful bombing and torpedo planes, protected by destroyers and cruisers. In still others there are big Japanese patrol bombers ,or groups of swift-moving surface warships.

"To meet these tentacles and chop them off, the United States Fleet has split itself up into what may be considered a number of fleets, each self-protecting and each able to strike swiftly by sea or air.

"Thus as the forces of America and Japan begin to make contact, naval and air battles on a scale without parallel in history are developing. These battles are taking place at widely separated points over seventy million square miles of ocean."

(The recent raid by United States naval task forces on the Marshall and Gilbert islands in the Pacific were part of the American campaign to establish a firm supply line across the Pacific.

(Recent statements by naval officials reveal the Navy has been hard at work at this task, which was described by Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of th. fleet, as the principal job of the Pacific fleet for the present.)

Tanks Push Japs Back In Burma

Mandalay

March 7 (INS)

OFFICIAL NEWS

Powerful British tank units today smashed into the midst of Japanese infantry forces northeast of Pegu, in the region where heavy fighting has been raging some 50 miles north of threatened Rangoon.

It appeared the tanks arrived just in time to assist the hard-pressed British imperial forces who had been forced back from the Sittang river defense line to a point within 15 miles of Pegu.

Latest reports said the Japs on this front have no tanks and thus have been placed in a serious position. Authorities said it was hardly likely the Japanese will be able to bring armored reinforcements across the difficult country between Burma and Thailand.

Arrival of the tanks was hailed with utmost enthusiasm.

For a reason which has completely mystified all English-speaking persons in Mandalay, native Burmese near the battle front kept yelling:

"The Christmas tree has arrived."

The Japanese, short of anti-tank guns, brought heavy mortars into action against the British tanks.

Officials warned that the tanks naturally cannot at one stroke relieve the present serious situation of Pegu, but admitted their arrival was the best piece of news Burma has had in weeks.

JAPS CUT NEW JAVA LINE

OFFICIAL NEWS

Bandoeng, March 7 (AP)

Japanese troops have broken through Bandoeng's northern defenses, it became known this morning. The situation of the western section of Java was admittedly critical, said Aneta, Dutch news agency.

Aneta said the breach occurred yesterday in defense lines on the northern slope of the famous volcano of Tangkuban Prahu.

This was the first line of northern defense of the Bandoeng area of resistance.

(This dispatch was timed at 10 a. m., Java time, or 9:30 p. m., Friday, Eastern War Time. It was about 13 hours between the filing and receipt at New York.

(CBS was advised today by RCA and American Telephone and Telepgraph Co. that all communications from Java had ceased.)

The break-through was said to have been made in the face of fierce resistance on the part of Netherlands Indies forces which were described as "numerically far inferior."

The defenders were harassed continually by Japanese planes against which, it was said, "the Dutch can no longer put up sufficient resistance."

Bandoeng's status at the end of the first week of the Japanese invasion of Java collapsed the hopes of hard-hit Dutch defense forces that the mountains of West Java could be made another Bataan for

PETAIN FLAYS FORMER ALLY AT PARIS BOMBING RITES

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—Marshal Petain, chief of the French state, said "history will judge the criminal aggression of a former ally" in a message read for him at funeral services in Paris today for victims of a British bombing raid on industrial suburbs Tuesday, a transcription of a French radio broadcast disclosed.

The aged marshal characterized the British, formerly allied with France against Germany, as those who "could not let our soldiers alone go to their death but two years later brought death with the coldest resolution to our innocent civilians."

"It is my dearest wish," Petain said, "that a monument shall one day arise over the chimneys of factories and workshops to commemorate the honor and self-denial of the workers of Paris.

"How can I express the gratitude of France to you workers who have fallen on the field of honor of your beloved Paris. For you have twice sacrificed yourselves for France—in your difficult lives and in your unjust death."

Knox Probes Story About Navy Battle

Washington

March 7 (INS)

Amazed over the circumstances which permitted a correspondent of the London Daily Mail to file a story purportedly from the high seas in the Pacific with an American convoy of troops and war supplies, Secretary of Navy Knox this afternoon promised "vigorous action" would be forthcoming.

Knox, encountered upon leaving a White House meeting of the War Council, said U. S. authorities were taking the matter up with the British.

"You can be sure we are checking it, and with a good deal of vigor," he said.

Knox pointed out that the correspondent in question, Walter Farr, "enjoyed the courtesy of an American ship with the understanding that anything he wrote would have to be checked."

Pending final report from his subordinates, Knox indicated preliminary investigation established the dispatch had been filed from a shore station, and not "at sea" as datelined.

Fury of U. S. Naval Attack Stuns Japs

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, March 7—There is good reason to doubt Japanese claims of having sunk two Australian cruisers, one British cruiser, one American cruiser, five other destroyers and seven submarines in the recent spectacular battle off Java.

The actual losses, of course, are still a matter of conjecture and will not be known until Washington releases the first details of American naval action in the area.

The London correspondent of the Sydney Herald today, writing under a London dateline, discussed the battle at length, pointing out that the United Nations had admitted loss of two light cruisers and three destroyers.

6 U. S. SHIPS IN BATTLE

However, he comments on a statement by the London Times that:

"It is known one American cruiser and five American destroyers were in the fight, and it seems inherently likely that British and Australian warships also were engaged."

There is no reason to believe that the spectacular Java sea battle followed a different pattern than other American cruiser and destroyer attacks. These, in the past, have been unbelievably hard-hitting, and have invariably set the Japs back on their heels.

Our cruisers and destroyers are much harder hitters than the Japs and their tactics are bolder.

After sparring for openings like two boxers, the Americans see one and dash at full speed straight at the Japanese column, which shies off—apparently surprised at such a furious onslaught.

HIT BY U. S. BROADSIDE

Our cruisers, with a couple of destroyers ahead like well-trained pointer dogs, bear down on the enemy at full speed, while the Japs open fire hurriedly and ineffectively.

When—and only when—they are close enough to see the whites of the enemy's eyes, the cruisers make a sharp right-angle turn, skidding through the water like racing cars on a slippery pavement.

This brings them broadside to the Jap warships protecting the enemy transports. Then all the cruisers' batteries open up at once.

The Jap warships stagger and go crazily in all directions, leaving openings in the screen around the transports.

Our destroyers which are following the cruisers do not turn, but keep straight ahead at full speed for these openings, zigzagging amid showers of spray from their knife-like prows and from badly-aimed Jap shells.

HOW U. S. BLASTS 'EM

With the cruisers driving the Japanese capital ships back on the convoy and opening holes in the protective screen, the destroyers go through, swing sharply and let go with torpedoes at the transports at close range.

Then they fight their way out as best they can, attacking Jap destroyers or anything else in their way with their main batteries, or torpedoes.

Some damage to our forces is unavoidable in battles like these, but it is a mighty effective way to blast enemy transports to the bottom, not to mention intervening warships.

The Americans delight in night destroyer attacks when they drive at their targets in the same manner under cover of darkness, causing great confusion and damage, and with a good chance of getting away unscathed.

GEN. PAT HURLEY HIT IN JAP RAID ON DARWIN

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, March 7 (INS)—Gen. Pat Hurley, former Secretary of War, was complaining, while traveling through the Pacific war zones, he always missed excitement, such as bombings or machine gunning. He was always too early or too late.

He finally got plenty and was wounded in a Jap raid on Port Darwin.

Flying from Java, his Army bomber was attacked by a swarm of Jap bombers.

"It is a peculiar sensation to see guns blazing away in the air and realize they are aimed at you," he commented.

By some fancy flying and the good shooting of the gunners on his plane, Gen. Hurley's craft escaped serious damage. American fighter planes had quickly swept into action and driven the Japs off.

MORE EXCITEMENT

Remarking he had had plenty of excitement for a little while and needed rest Gen. Hurley disembarked at Port Darwin and went to bed to catch up on sleep. After a few hours he got up and was having some breakfast in his hotel room when the Japs suddenly arrived there.

Gen. Hurley said:

"There was a blast and something whizzed into the room and spun my breakfast tray around and messed up everything generally. I grabbed my shirt and pants and ran out into the hallway. I got dressed and started out. Then I realized I didn't have my cap.

"Thinking it undignified for a general to be bare-headed, I ran back and got my cap. I started down the hallway again when another one hit. I went skidding on my face, tumbled down the stairs and ran into the street.

"I looked everywhere and there was not a soul in sight.

"There was nothing but buzzing Jap planes and plenty of

PATRIOTIC LABORERS' PLEDGE OF $250,000 BOOSTS HUGE FUND

BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS! Give our fighting men a real weapon to smash the Axis into bits and insure FINAL VICTORY.

BONDS FOR BOMBERS WILL DO IT!

The drive to provide an unlimited fund for purchase of BOMBERS climbed steadily toward the $20,000,000 mark today with the addition of $250,000 from the Massachusetts Construction and General Laborers' Union.

The actual total to date is $19,920,406, almost enough money to buy EIGHTY powerful "battleships" of the skies.

Local No. 385 in New Bedford leads the way for all the 17 locals in the state Construction and General Laborers' Union with a definite purchase of $33,000.

The Whaling City organization yesterday placed BONDS in that amount in a safe deposit vault in a New Bedford bank. Leaders of the New Bedford union promise that at least $40,000 of the state group's $250,000 pledge will be accounted for by their organization.

LOCAL UNIONS RALLY

Throughout Massachusetts other locals are rallying behind their officers in meeting the challenge. Fitchburg Local has purchased $40,000 worth of BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS already.

In Quincy, Local No. 133 has bought $3000 in BONDS. From Lawrence Local No. 175 purchases of $25,000 are reported. And in Boston, Local 151 reports $1000 already purchased.

Other local organizations yet to report include Lowell, Lynn, Salem, Gloucester, Fall River, Norwood, Worcester, Springfield (two locals), Holyoke (two locals), Northampton, North Andover, Pittsfield and Framingham.

These thousands of construction workers and general laborers, working day and night on vital war projects, are patriotically giving attention to the ultimate aim of all America's efforts . . . FINAL and COMPLETE VICTORY.

NEED MONEY TO WIN

They realize the buildings and war production cannot go on at the tremendous pace this all-out war requires without MONEY. Everything these men are working on costs money . . . whether it be

STEVIE KRAMER
Gives Savings for Bond

STEVIE, 3, DIGS UP $25, BUYS BOMBER BOND

Stevie Kramer, son of Murray Kramer, Record-American sports writer, is only three years old, but he's got the right idea about BUYING BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS.

He's been sliding pennies, nickels and dimes into his little steel bank most of his short life and he figured they'd add up to quite a tidy sum.

At the cashier's window in the Record-American Building he worked diligently with hammer and screwdriver to find out his total "assets." After much hard labor, Stevie got the top off his bank.

"Gee, mister, there's enough here to buy a $25 BOND," Stevie exulted as he spread the coins before the cashier.

Another BOND for MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS was the result.

Labor Unites to Pay Tom Mooney Tribute

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7 (AP)—Labor unted today in preparing a final tribute for Tom Mooney, whose successful fight for freedom from prison made him an international figure.

Representatives of the CIO, AFL, and railroad unions, forming labor's unity-for-victory committee, co-operated in plans for a public tribute to the 58-year-old labor leader who died yesterday. Services will be held at the civic auditorium Sunday.

N.Y. Tenement Blaze Kills 3

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—At least three persons were burned to death early today in a tenement fire on the lower West Side and an undetermined number were injured.

Seven persons were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Firemen said they were unable to determine immediately whether any more persons were trapped in the four-story building, located at 239 W. 16th st.

First reports were that the flames started on the first floor and quickly ate their way upward through the old structure.

A mother leaped out of a second story window with her baby in her arms and both were injured seriously.

DR. INEZ CLARKE, WOMAN RECLUSE, FOUND DEAD IN CAMBRIDGE MANSION

In the rat-infested cellar of her 20-room mansion, the body of Dr. Inez Louise Clarke, 78-year-old Cambridge recluse, was found today by police. Each room in the house contained a pail of sand for use in the event of an air raid.

The body of the timid little woman, who was the storm center in removal proceedings against Judge Arthur P. Stone of East Cambridge court in 1932, was found fully-clothed face down near the coal bin.

A coal hod and shovel near by indicated she had been stricken while going for a supply of coal.

The discovery was made by Patrolman John Tarant and Harry Johnson, a letter carrier, who had become suspicious after seeing a growing supply of mail left stuffed in the slot of the front door of her mansion at Massachusetts ave. and Inman st.

ALL THE DOORS LOCKED

Johnson went to police and returned to the mansion with Tarant. They forced an entrance through a rear door into the cellar, but because of darkness they failed to see the body.

Ascending to the first floor, they found almost every door in the big place locked, and laboriously worked their way through the entire house before returning to the cellar with flashlights.

The woman, a graduate of Radcliffe College and the daughter of the late Dr. A. P. Clarke, once prominent Cambridge physician, apparently had been dead for several [illegible]. The date of the latest newspaper in the house was Feb. 21.

Great rats gamboled through the musty rooms, and the jagged pages of books and paper showed where they had gnawed. Although most of the rooms were locked, in each there was a pail of sand and near it a shovel.

RECLUSE'S SISTER DEAD

Always thought to be a peculiar type by neighbors, Inez Clark had become more and more of a recluse since the death of her sister, Genevieve Clark, who also held the title of medical doctor, about 10 years ago.

It was over management of the estate and affairs of Genevieve Clarke that Judge Stone was haled to court by Dr. Inez Clarke in 1932 and made to show an accounting of certain transactions made by him as their counsel. Subsequently, ouster proceedings were brought against him, but later dismissed.

At the time of the suit, witnesses said the Clarke sisters lived in a "pigsty," and Inez herself admitted that they both lived exclusively in their kitchen, sleeping in chairs.

Once a well-kept and beautiful estate, the Clarke mansion had fallen into disrepair in recent years, seeming forlorn and neglected.

BOTH SISTERS DOCTORS

Although Inez Clarke was educated in medicine, as was her sister neither ever practiced extensively.

In the middle of the dining room floor, Tarant and Johnson found a huge pile of unopened journals of the Massachusetts Medical Society. Many of them had been nibbled at by the rats which scampered in the corners.

They found also more than 200 galvanized metal barrels filled with canned foodstuffs, a fact which coupled with the air raid sand, seemed to indicate the old lady was preparing for a long siege by air raiders.

LEWIS PLANS TO ORGANIZE DAIRYMEN

By JACK VINCENT

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7—John L. Lewis, president of the CIO's United Mine Workers Union, disclosed plans today to begin organization of dairy farmers on a nation-wide basis in what was regarded as an attempt to build up the biggest and most powerful single labor union in the United States.

Informed labor circles in Washington believed also Lewis was making long-range plans to again assume a dominant position in the CIO, or, if necessary, split with it and set up a third labor group in opposition to both the CIO and AFL. Asked point blank if he was planning a "third party" in labor's ranks, the shaggy-browed Lewis replied:

"No comment."

Lewis simply announced two independent dairy farmers unions had voted to become part of—not the CIO—but of the UMW. The organizations were the Dairy Farmers Union of New York, which claims 22,000 members, and the United Dairy Farmers of Michigan, which claims 5400 members. In the future, it will be known as the United Dairy Farmers, District 50, United Mine Workers of America.

Delegates from the two unions continued meetings today in Washington to elect officers and set the amount of dues, probably on a per capita instead of a per cow basis.

SCIENCE MARVELS AS BOY HOLDS BREATH 20 MINUTES

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., March 7 (AP)—Wesleyan University hailed Eugene J. Frechette, Jr., a junior, as the new champion today for a performance that was literally breath-taking.

In the interest of science, the 20-year-old student stopped breathing for 20 minutes, five seconds, setting up what university scientists said was a world's breath-holding record.

Frechette, who hopes to be a physician handily beat the champion, J. Edward Burns of Wethersfield. Burns, holder of the record at 16 minutes, 23 seconds established a year ago, exceeded his own performance by 26 seconds before Frechette dethroned him.

Everybody was very ernest and serious about the whole thing. Actually it was part of a laboratory test in experimental physiology to demonstrate the capacity of human endurance and prove that reflex action eventually will force a person to breathe even against his wish.

The technique calls for the subject to overbreathe for three minutes and then to inhale three deep breaths of pure oxygen. After that, the official time-keeper goes to work while the subject sits quietly without breathing.

Frechette, who lives in New Haven, described the sensations he experienced as "terrible," with "hard poundings in my head."

"You feel like you're dying," he said.

Girls Without Glamor Should Shy at Pareus

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 (AP)—"Only seven women in the United States," said Eddie Stevenson, looking approvingly at Peggy Drake, "could wear a pareu glamorously."

Stevenson directed Peggy and a few others, but principally Peggy, through several eye catching movie scenes.

The director and his studio's press agents should get together. A month ago the ballyhoo boys were advocating nationwide adoption of pareus as a clothing economy.

Stevenson ignored—or maybe he didn't know about—the P.A.'s campaign. Anyway, he went right on, eyes twinkling:

"Only seven. A pareu is a Tahitian garment with all the uplift qualities of a bedsheet, the girdling properties of a tablecloth, and the revealing capacity of an X-ray.

(A pareu is a strip of flowered cloth. It's wrapped around the body and tied behind the shoulder.)

"Peggy Drake's figure is an outstanding example. Well molded and firm, Peggy would be attractive swathed in a table cloth."

Sure, Eddie, Peggy had to be on the list, but who . . .

"The others are Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard and Gene Tierney of the films, and three society girls, Cobina Wright, Jr., Brenda Frazier and Gloria Vanderbilt Di Cicco."

"Isn't Cobina in the movies, to, Eddie?"

"Don't get brainy. This is purely a visual matter," sidestepped the director.

Hub Area Prepares For Big Blackout

The greatest blackout in the east will take place in the 600 square miles of the Greater Boston area, including 49 cities and towns with a total population of nearly 2,000,000, on the night of March 31.

Michael J. Kelleher, regional director of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, announced the date for the test as state defense officials sped plans to safeguard residents in the face of any possible attack.

Between now and the end of the month, every community in the metropolitan region, one of the world's most thickly settled areas, will have held a preliminary test.

Specific hour of the blackout will be decided later, Kelleher said.

The area to be darkened is officially known as the Fifth Civilian Defense Region. For the purposes of the blackout, a portion of Region 4 will be included, taking in Lynn, Saugus, Nahant and Lynnfield, and Natick, Framingham and Wayland in Region 3.

"SIMULATE REAL THING"

At the appointed moment, the vast region extending from Scituate on the southeast to Framingham on the west, and from Holbrook on the south to Lynnfield on the north, will be plunged into darkness.

"We will simulate the real t' ing on the night of March 31," Kelleher said.

He disclosed that air raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen and other defense units will be called to posts of duty.

His announcement came shortly after Col. Robert L. Whipple, regional director of the Third Civilian Defense Area, called for a heavy guard on the Clinton dam and Wachusett reservoir during Thursday night's blackout in the Greater Worcester area, in order to protect water supplies of Boston and other communities.

GUARD WATER SUPPLY

In a communication to Adjt.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, Capt. John F. Stokes of the State Police and Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman of the Metropolitan District Commission, he said adequate precautions should be taken to prevent crippling of Greater Boston's water supply during the 20-minute test.

SMITHFIELD, N. C., March 7 (AP)—Seven persons were killed and more than 100 were reported injured near here today when a truck loaded with 30,000 pounds of high explosives and ammunition caught fire and exploded.

Identified injured included Jimmy Bachstrom, Worcester, Mass., and Albert Hardberger, Millis, Mass.

The thunderous detonation rocked the land for miles around. A hotel building, a filling station, and a tavern were leveled.

Most of the casualties were bystanders who had watched the truck, at first involved in a collision burn for almost two hours. Two men were killed in an auto trying to pass the fire.

Highway Patrolman Bobbitt said the explosion, heard 50 miles away, occurred at 3 a. m. The auto-truck collision took place at 1:15 a. m. and firemen from Selma and Smithfield had succeeded in extinguishing the fire in the automobile when they had to return for water.

So tremendous was the power of the explosion that one man was injured a quarter of a mile away by flying wreckage. Debris was found 2½ miles away.

"Suddenly the truck exploded and Luke Capps' filling station, 150 yards away, and behind which I was sitting in my car was leveled to the ground," Bobbitt said.

"My car was demolished and only by the grace of God am I living to tell the details."

7500 Taxpayers Jam U. S. Office

Close to 7500 taxpayers jammed the offices of the internal revenue bureau at the federal building today in one of the heaviest single day's income tax filings on record.

Extra chairs and tables set up on the seventh and eighth floors and extra guards stationed around the cashier's cage failed materially to relieve the jam.

Collector Thomas B. Hassett said every available deputy inspector and field agent was on duty in the bureau.

Deadline for filing is March 16, since the 15th falls on a Sunday, and Hassett said he expected big crowds daily until then.

Henderson Assails Refrigerator Prices

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson issued a peremptory request today that "inflationary and unfair" price increases on mechanical refrigerators be rescinded immediately and that prices be restored to Feb. 2 levels.

In telegrams to distributors, dealers and retail outlets, Henderson asserted that the sharp price increases had occurred on a nation wide scale since the War Production Board froze refrigerator stocks on Feb. 11 preliminary to inaugurating a rationing plan.

Two Exciting Games Fun for Junior Army

Here is the eleventh lesson in the Physical Fitness course, prepared for Junior Victory Army members by Joe McKenney, associate director, physical education, Boston public schools, to fit them for defense efforts.

By JOE McKENNEY

LESSON ELEVEN

Here are two games for boy members of the Junior Army that will provide many happy hours of play:

1—KICK THE BAR

Equipment. One piece of rubber bicycle tire five inches long.

Field. A modified baseball diamond with a bunt line drawn across from first to third base.

Game. A variation of baseball. Instead of using a ball and bat a rubber bar is used. The baseball rules carry over with one or two variations.

1—Instead of having a pitcher the catcher takes the bar and stands it up on end on home plate, then the kicker kicks the bar and runs to first base. The bar must carry on the fly across a bunt line which is drawn across the diamond from first base to third base. If the bar fails to carry across the line then the kicker is automatically out.

HIT HOME PLATE

2—The fielders, instead of throwing the bar to the base, throw it home to the catcher, who hits home plate, shouting the base to which the runner is going. If he does this before the runner reaches the called base then the runner is out.

3—No runner may advance on a kick unless it carries beyond the bunt line.

4—When a man on base is taking a lead, the catcher has a right to reach down, snatch the bar, and call the man out even though the kicker is running forward to kick the bar.

2—TOUCH FOOTBALL

Touch football is a modified form of football, and the rules, unless specifically changed, are the same as ordinary football.

Changes:

1—Instead of tackling the ball carrier, the player or players on the defensive team will tag him and the ball will be dead at that spot.

2—The offensive team must advance the ball 20 yards—instead of 10—to gain a first down.

PLAYERS ROTATE

3—The backfield of the offensive team, when that team loses possession of the ball, take the positions of linemen on the left side of the line, the men that were there shift to the right side and the men that were on the right side move into the backfield. By this method of rotating the players, each man has an opportunity to play in the backfield or at the end positions.

(A new exciting game for boy members of the Junior Army will be described in Monday's Physical Fitness lesson in the Evening American.)

RUSSIAN ARMY SLAYS 40,000 NAZI SOLDIERS

OFFICIAL NEWS

MOSCOW, March 7 (AP)—The Soviet government announced today Red army troops had killed 40,000 Germans and recaptured 263 villages and towns on the central front alone from Feb. 6 to March 5 in an advance still under way.

(Russians closing in on German centers of resistance behind their advanced spearheads were reported in a Stockholm dispatch to the London Daily Herald to have regained Losmino, only six miles south of Nazi-held Vyazma. This would indicate Soviet troops were within artillery range of Vyazma, on the Moscow-Smolensk highway 125 miles west of the capital.)

"During March 6," said the Soviet information bureau, "our troops continued to repel enemy counterattacks, advanced and occupied several populated places."

A rising tempo of aerial warfare—involving transport as well as fighting craft under Adolf Hitler's system of attempting to supply isolated garrisons by air—was indicated in a declaration that 70 German planes were destroyed Thursday. The total was the highest claimed by the Russians in weeks.

"Our losses were 14," the information bureau said.

Booty captured on the central front in the 28-day period ended March 5 was said to include 43 tanks, 285 guns, 28 aircraft, four gliders, 794 trucks, 1012 horses, 16 locomotives, and 595 railway cars.

bombs. It is an empty feeling having no friends around at such a time.

"Down the street came planes with machine guns blazing away. I ran to the side of the street and dived into the dirt alongside of the house on the side away from the direction where the Japs were coming.

BOWLED OVER BY BOMB

"But when they got up to the end of the street they turned around and came back and there was I in plain view and feeling mighty silly.

"But they missed me and I got up and started to run across the street towards a big park when another bomb hit right in back of me. It sent me rolling end over appetite, but I got up and started running again until I came to a big tree under which the Jap fliers couldn't see me.

"Then this strange thing happened. A bomb blast swept over me and I looked up and there was not a leaf on the tree. Once more I was alone and in plain view.

"Up came an Australian. He said: 'General, would you like me to show you the way to a shelter?' I said I certainly would be much obliged and he did.

"Somebody wanted to know how blood had got on my arm. Then I realized for the first time I had been hit a little bit in the left shoulder. It was bandaged and all is well now. It was nothing serious at all.

"While waiting for transportation to another field I went over in a park and went to sleep. Never again will I say I am looking for excitement. The Japs furnished plenty."

DUTCH LINES AT BANDOENG CUT BY JAPS

a long stand like that of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops on Luzon.

Two other mountainous cores of the Java defense still remain for the test of grim holding action against overwhelmingly superior numbers. These are at Magelang in the volcano-studded range some 180 miles east of Bandoeng, and Malang, 75 miles south of Soerabaja.

ALLIES MASS AT BANDOENG

At Bandoeng once headquarters of the United Nations command and later made war capital of Java, the Dutch had concentrated food stores and war supplies around a nucleus of munitions plants which had veen developed before the war.

Its approaches were guarded by gun positions in the cliffside passes of mountains jutting up more than 10,000 feet above sea level.

A rail line connected the city with Tjilatjap, only good port on Java's south coast for reinforcement or withdrawal of Java's defenders.

The Japanese claimed to have wrecked the port facilities by bombing and said they had cut across narrow middle Java to the south coast, presumably near the port.

Thus Java's defense forces apparently were cut in two, and the troops at Bandoeng were isolated from the defense centers at the east of the island.

centration in the immediate vicinity of the important Dutch naval base, a Tokyo report broadcast by the German radio said today.

"According to reports from the Java front," the Japanese dispatch said, "the retreat of Dutch East Indies forces from Batavia to Bandoeng was cut off after Japanese troops coming from the west reached Buitenzorg.

"Simultaneously with operations in western Java, the Japanese Army formation operating in the center of the island penetrated to Soerabaja where heavy enemy tank forces are concentrated."

More Japs Land In Philippines

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The Japanese have extended their occupation of the Philippines, the War Department said today in reporting the landing of a small force of invaders accompanied by tanks at Calapan on the island of Mindoro.

Mindoro is about 70 miles south of the Bataan peninsula fighting front, where a communique said activity had ceased except for slight artillery fire and an ineffective enemy air raid.

Desultory fighting took place meanwhile between patrols on the outskirts of Zamboanga, on the southern island of Mindanao, where new invaders landed this week.

(A Rome radio broadcast heard in London today quoted "Tokyo reports" that the Japanese forces have occupied Cebu in the Philippines. Cebu is a small island located 50 miles north of Mindanao.)

WANT REVENGE—Woodrow Roussell (in bed) of Cambridge and Adolph Storm of Stafford, Ct., have an attentive listener in Nurse Winifred Moyer as they relate a few sea tales while recuperating in the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia. Newest Jap Lie Sinks 219 Ships

•ENEMY REPORT

TOKYO (from Japanese broadcasts), March 7 (AP)—The Japanese navy imperial headquarters claimed tonight that 219 United Nations warships and merchantmen, including five United States battleships, have been sunk since the start of the "greater East Asia war."

(Japanese naval claims, almost invariably exaggerated, have been proved unfounded in the past. Usually they have been obvious attempts to locate United Nations fleet dispositions. No confirmation for the latest extreme claims have come from any source.)

doeng, Allied military headquarters in Java, reporting that Japanese troops were storming at the gates of Bandoeng and had already broken through the city's northern defenses.

The official Java radio station is located at Bandoeng, and its signing off may have meant the Allies were preparing to abandon the city or that Japanese troops had forced its surrender.

Dutch quarters in London said they hoped to hear further news of the climactic struggle from small secret transmitting stations in the heart of Java, just strong enough to be picked up in Australia, but that "so far we haven't received a word from these stations."

A Tokyo broadcast asserted collapse of the entire defense of Java, the last United Nations citadel north of Australia, was regarded "as a matter of a few days."

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The War Department's communique, No. 138, based on reports received until 9:30 a. m. (E. W. T.), said:

"1—Philippine Theater: Except for slight artillery fire and an ineffective enemy air raid, there was no activity on Bataan.

"A comparatively small force of Japanese troops, accompanied by tanks, landed at Calapan on the Island of Mindoro. Several ports on the east coast of the island were shelled by enemy naval craft.

"There was desultory fighting between patrols on the outskirts of Zamboanga on the Island of Mindanao.

HEROIC U. S. FLIER KILLED IN JAVA FIGHT

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, March 7 (INS)—In all this unhappy and war-torn area military men acknowledge there was no greater flier than Maj. Stanley K. Robinsen, United States Army, who was killed over the Macassar straits while helping to defend Java.

Flying a fighter plane, he was with the force which attacked a Japanese transport fleet. Despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, he led his squadron right into the heart of the attack. His squadron dropped down out of the clouds and went for the Jap fighters.

Maj. Robinson's squadron sent the larger Jap force scattering in every direction. Maj. Robinson dropped three or four as his companions got theirs.

Turning back, the major's pals saw his plane was shot up and was losing altitude and acting badly. Instead of bailing out, he stayed with his plane until the ailerons went out and then he plunged to his death in the water.

It was revealed later he had radioed his base that he had been shot up badly. They told him to jump out. He answered:

"I want to wait a minute. I may be able to save the plane."

That was his last report.

Another American flier with the rank of Army lieutenant was set afire by Jap incendiary bullets off Celebes. He was told to bail out when he radioed the word to his base. He replied he preferred to stay with his plane and try to save it. The plane exploded in midair and the lieutenant was killed.

20 Billion Tax Bill Urged By Oklahoman

By GRIFFING BANCROFT

WASHINGTON, March 7 (INS)—A Democratic member of the House ways and means committee suggested today that federal revenues should be raised to $45,000,000,000 a year—a step which would require a new $20,000,000,000 tax bill.

The suggestion was made by Rep. Disney (D.) of Oklahoma, and came as the House prepared to act on a bill to lift the legal limit of the national debt from $85,000,000,000 to $125,000,000,000.

"I am going to propose that we take back in taxes 90 or 95 percent of what we are spending for the war," Disney declared. "We are spending all this money right in this country, and the people are benefitting from it. We are increasing their incomes by $50,000,000,000 a year in war spending. Why shouldn't we say, 'You can keep $5,000,000,000 of it, and we'll take back $45,000,000,000?'"

"SENATOR LOGANBERRY" is looking rather disapprovingly, but for Victor Moore, who plays him, his present "Louisiana Purchase" assignment is one of his happiest in a long and successful career. The big Broadway production goes into its second week at the Shubert on Monday.

MARGY DALE of "The New Hellzapoppin" company which pops into the Majestic Theater on Tuesday evening direct from a successful Philadelphia engagement. The Olsen and Johnson stage lark is 81 per cent new since it had its pre-Broadway premiere here in Sept. of 1938.

A FEATURED lovely in "My Dear Public," song-writing Irving Caesar's first production effort opening at the Colonial Theater on Monday evening, is April Ames. Others are Mitzi Green, John Buckmaster, Tamara and Cora Witherspoon. The Revuers are also in the cast.

$98,250 in Dimes

RKO Theaters from coast to coast, through the generosity of patrons, collected $98,250.76 in the recent March of Dimes drive, Charles W. Koerner, general manager, announced last night.

Irving Caesar, Long Famed For Songs, Turns Producer

Although he has contributed some of America's outstanding song hits in the past two decades to countless Broadway musical successes, Irving Caesar, who is making his producing debut with "My Dear Public" next Monday evening at the Colonial, is little known outside of his profession.

A meed of fame, of course, has come to him through his series of "Sing a Song of Safety" compositions, which he broadcasts weekly, and his many song hits. But his genius as a craftsman for the legitimate theater somehow has been lost in the shuffle.

To begin with, Caesar is probably the foremost librettist in the country. His books and sketches have decorated several editions of George White's Scandals and the Ziegfeld Follies. He wrote "Wonderberr" for Al Jolson.

It is in the field of song, however, that he is definitely preeminent. His inspired music-box has turned out a long list of unforgettable tunes, including "Swanee," "Just a Gigolo," "Lady, Play Your Mandolin," "Tea for Two," "Crazy Rhythm" and "Is It True What They Say About Dixie."

Producing a show of his own has long been one of his pet ambitions, but not until he read the book of "My Dear Public" did he get excited enough to drop routine chores for the impresario's mantle. With Charles Gottesfeld he fashioned the book, and with Samuel Lerner and Gerald Marks invented the songs.

The cast is headed by Mitzi Green, John Buckmaster, Tamara, Joe Smith, Cora Witherspoon, Charles Dale, The Revuers, Rose Brown, The Martins, Miriam LaVelle and April Ames.

WOODY HERMAN, HIS CLARINET AND ORCHESTRA DELIGHT RKO BOSTON FANS

Abbott-Costello Hit in 2d Week

By PEGGY DOYLE

Woody Herman and his topflight jive outfit are right in the groove for the RKO-Boston, where yesterday they took over the stage and a thoroughly partisan capacity house.

The new Abbott and Costello picture, "Ride 'Em Cowboy," is continuing a second week, which threatens even to top last week's healthy box office record.

Tabbed as the band most likely to hit the top this year, yesterday's performance was further evidence that the orchestral soothsayers must know whereof they predict. The Herman organization is uniformly excellent. Its arrangements are first-rate and the same may be said for its personnel, which is also individually and collectively personable.

Herman gets off some hot licks on the clarinet. He also offers some acceptable vocal numbers, his most enthusiastically received one being the brooding "Blues in the Night."

Carolyn Grey, the band's pretty vocalist, got a hand even before she unleashed one note, which she does very nicely. Her numbers were those current favorites, "I Said No" and "I Don't Want to Walk Without You."

Billie Rogers, introduced as "from the University of Montana," is a smooth-looking co-ed who surprises by her skill with the clarinet. She sings, too, and her "Deep in the Heart of Texas" couldn't have been more heartily received.

Belett and the English Brothers, the chubby, little Miss Tarzan and her two sailor-suited companions, have a slick act. She tosses them, one at a time, over her shoulder with the ease of a lady shaking a salt-cellar where it will do the most good.

Pat Henning and Co. . . . the latter being an attractive, soft-spoken blonde in clinging white satin . . . is principally Mr. H. doing impersonations with an eye-twinkle.

The closing band number, "Blues On Parade," writes finis to a program that could go on forever so far as yesterday's opening-show audience was concerned.

WOODY HERMAN

Artur Rubinstein's Sunday's Program

Artur Rubinstein, whose first Symphony Hall recital takes place tomorrow afternoon, will include Stravinsky's Petrouchka suite in the form that it was originally written for and dedicated to the famous Polish pianist.

Other selections on his program will be Sonata op. 57, F minor "Appassionata," Beethoven; Intermezzi, B flat, op. 117, and C major, op. 119, and Rhapsody, B minor, op. 79, Brahms; Ballade, op. 47, Mazurka, Nocturne, Polonaise, op. 53, Chopin; Mouvements perpetuels, Poulenc; Forlane, Ravel,

Understudy Wins Mary Boland Role

Mary Boland, featured in "The Rivals," left the cast of the Theater Guild's revival of Sheridan's comedy after Tuesday night's performance in Chicago. Miss Boland has gone to her home in California to recuperate from a bronchial condition. Rosalind Ivan, her understudy, is now playing Mrs. Malaprop and will be seen in that role when the Bobby Clark-Walter Hampden co-starring production comes to the Boston Opera House March 16.

"WOMAN OF THE YEAR" is the comedy of this year, thanks to the teaming of Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn, whose fans are jamming Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Errol Flynn Hit At Beacon Sunday

"They Died With Their Boots On," with Errol Flynn portraying valiant Gen. George Custer and Olivia DeHavilland as Mrs. Custer, is to be seen on Beacon screen for four days, starting tomorrow. The co-feature will be "Unexpected Uncle," co-starring Charles Coburn and Anne Shirley.

PERFUME TIPS TO MAKE YOU MUCH MORE ALLURING

By ARLINE GOULD

PERHAPS YOU'VE been hearing an undercurrent of talk about the $100 an ounce jasmine perfume that makes its slyly seductive approach, scenting the correspondingly costly furs of glamour-bent women . . . and you'll be equally interested in the things its creator has to say about making the most of perfume's allure potentialities.

She says you may as well admit that its primary purpose is to make you more alluring.

Further, according to her, men like sparkling fragrances. They don't like a miasmic aura of sweet, cloying scent. If you like a heavy Oriental perfume (and you should), use it sparingly, a drop here and there. Spray your hair and clothes with a lighter perfume which blends with the heavy odor. Thus you'll be creating a distinctive blend that will spell you, and you alone.

Men like your perfume to linger on their hands. Be sure your hands are perfumed.

It's a waste of expensive perfume to put it on a hankie. Perfume your gloves instead. Use toilet water on handkerchiefs.

Perfume is best distributed when it is applied where the air can reach it. Therefore, perfume your hair, veils, the hem of your skirt (this last is a famous trick of European beauties) with your sparkling odor. This authority avers that the following method is best in using something like her famous jasmine from Egypt . . . Though it doesn't appeal to us . . . perhaps it will to you! A drop of it on a pledget of cotton, sewed into a tiny satin bag, should be worn like an amulet, inside your lingerie, next to your heart. For evening, add a drop under each arm.

Dab a drop of perfume on a letter you write to your man in the service . . . not new, but just as heart-warming as it ever was!

PENNY PINCHING MAY BE a budget virtue but it often spells danger to nutrition. A full market basket doesn't mean a well fed family, either. It's getting the right food in the right proportions that counts. And today, with the country at war, it's cutting out the frills in favor of the essentials.

Much has been written about the essentials. Briefly, they include milk (and plenty of it!), butter, eggs, meat, fish or poultry, fruit, especially the citrus varieties; vegetables of all kinds, raw and cooked, and cereals, including bread, either whole grain or vitamin enriched.

Of the vitamin enriched cereals, whole wheat flakes is one of the tastiest. But this crunchy cereal need not be confined to breakfast. Combine it with applesauce in a rich, flavored dessert called Pep Applesauce Betty, or use it as an ingredient in the corn pudding described below. In a single serving this cereal contains a good contribution to the average person's daily requirement for vitamin B-1 and a half of the day's need for vitamin D, so that it's worth remembering as a menu aid.

PEP APPLESAUCE BETTY

2½ cups unsweetened applesauce (No. 2 can)
2 cups vitamin enriched wheat cereal
¼ cup melted butter
¾ cup light brown sugar
1½ tsp. cinnamon

Arrange applesauce in a loaf pan or casserole in alternate layers with cereal which has been mixed with sugar and butter, having top layer of cereal mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Serve with cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings (4½x8½-inch dish).

Note—Stewed fresh apples may be used in this recipe.

CORN PUDDING

1½ cups cream style corn
2 tbsp. chopped celery
2 tbsp. minced onion
1 tsp. salt
2 cups vitamin enriched wheat cereal
1-3 cup diced cheese
1 egg
1 cup milk
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
¼ tsp. paprika

Combine corn, celery, onion and salt. Place in casserole in alternate layers with cereal and cheese, reserving about 1-3 cup cereal for a top layer. Beat egg; add milk and melted butter; pour over layers. Cover with cereal and sprinkle paprika over it. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 30 minutes. Makes 6 to 7 servings (8½-inch casserole).

It took an ingenious homemaker, who had been serving it to her family at breakfast for years, to start combining shredded wheat with meats and vegetables as the base for an entree at dinner time. In a short time its new uses have become just as popular as its old ones. Cooks all over the country are using it in loaves, casserole dishes and as a shell for creamed foods. And the fact that it is so inexpensive and so easy to keep on hand makes it doubly desirable.

For the creamed mushrooms shown in the picture the biscuits may be split or scooped out after they have been moistened. Either canned or fresh mushrooms may be used, and they may be combined, if you like, with peas.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS

2 cups cooked mushrooms, fresh or canned
2 tbsp. butter
2 cups medium white sauce
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
6 shredded wheat biscuits
Parsley

Saute mushrooms in hot butter and stir in white sauce and Worcestershire. With a sharp-pointed knife, hollow out shredded wheat biscuit. Remove loose shreds. Heat and fill with hot creamed mushrooms. Garnish with parsley. Makes 6 servings

CREAMED MUSHROOMS in shredded wheat cases.

KNIT A FITTED sweater to top your short-skirt outfit . . . the pleated flannel in which you walk through the country, or bicycle on a hostel tour . . . or to wear over your beach slacks come a cold northeast wind. This sweater was originally designed for a skating costume, but so tricky is the contrasting shawl collar and the stripe down the sleeves that it deserves a place in a year-round sports wardrobe. Notice how cleverly its ribbed lines create a fitted waistline. In white with red trimming it has lots of dash. SLIM DRESS PLUS LOOSE JACKET FOR SPRING WEAR

By BETTINA BEDWELL

WHILE MUCH has been said about the suit, don't get the idea that our beloved jacket and dress ensemble is not around this Spring. It is. In fact, a lot of so-called suits are really a dress plus a jacket. However, this kind of outfit has come out in a brand new edition, and you'll be wanting to know about it.

The latest version is the slim and molded dress paired with a jacket that's decidedly on the loose side. This is the newest thing in jacket ensembles, but of course there are plenty of fitted jackets and dresses paired up and ready, though they're less novel.

One of the new editions is sketched. It is a model from Villa Zigmund and has the loose jacket, which is a bit more than hip length, paired with a slim dress, both made of very soft lightweight golden yellow wool. The jacket has bias-band edges and may be closed right up to the neckline, or worn open.

The dress is cleverly cut with slimming, diagonal lines of tucks and stitching, and a gold metal bird ornaments the left side of the waist below the shoulderline.

Great Demand for Entertainers

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Friday—I was only a half hour late in arriving in Washington from Seattle yesterday, which, considering the distance, is very remarkable. On both trips the weather was very smooth, and for this time of year that means I really was very fortunate.

Last evening, after a quiet dinner with my husband and a few guests, I went to the opening session of the institute organized by the Washington bureau of the International Student Service. Dr Zook, of the American Council on Education, presided. Dr. Brown, also of the American Council on Education, who has been working with the Army and Navy on questions pertaining to the education of the young men in the services, as well as the preparation of youth in our colleges, spoke. He gave the young people a very good picture of the different plans made by the Army and Navy to obtain good material for officers and petty-officers, and to help the men already in the service to progress and improve themselves while they are on duty.

My mail is interesting reading these days. Yesterday I came across a letter from a woman who is arranging free appearances for New York city actors and actresses both on government request and for private organizations. She explained to me that there are a great many people who can adequately do what private groups want done, but that everyone seemed grieved if they were not offered someone whose name is known from coast to coast.

I realize, of course, that all groups want to make "their meeting" a great success, but I am afraid we cannot ask these ever-generous artists to be in more than one place at a time, or to do so much that they can not do their regular work properly.

I have a very exciting letter from Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, of the Universal Pictures Co., Inc., in California. They are going to tour the nation's theaters in the near future, and every penny of salary which they receive, will go toward the purchase of a bomber. That is a goodly sum for two people to earn [illegible] them back and I am sure we will be most glad to [illegible] whatever they do.

[illegible] by the people who [illegible] me for jobs. People I know, who have jobs are always in demand to do some new one, or to take on a little more than they are already doing. I suppose this means that when one has proved his capacity, he is in constant demand. Very few of us have the courage to try a new person, which, perhaps, we had better begin to do.

MEMBERS of both Boston and Gotham society are having an opportunity to extend best wishes to Boston's latest engaged couple — Susan Bassett and Robert Wilcox Sayles, Jr.

Beginning a series of parties for the happy couple, Mrs. Dorothea Shepard Bassett of Boston, mother of the prospective bride, was hostess at a luncheon at Brae Burn Country Club today to officially announce the engagement.

This party will be closely followed by a small tea which the bridegroom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilcox Sayles of Chestnut Hill, are giving at their home tomorrow afternoon . . . and next Saturday the partying will continue in New York, where Susan's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Norton Shepard, will be hosts at a reception for the couple.

Susan is the daughter of John Bossler Bassett of New York and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Otis Atherton Shepard of Brookline . . . She is a graduate of Dana Hall Schools and attended Mills College and the University of California at Berkeley . . .

Her fiance, grandson of the late Mr. Frederic Clark Sayles of Pawtucket, attended the Los Alamos Ranch School in New Mexico and the University of Chicago . . .

An early May wedding is planned.

EVIDENTLY GENTLEMEN still prefer blondes, which may account for the large representation of white ties and uniforms in the audience when the Junior League Orchestra presented its final concert of the season in the league ballroom.

Counting noses, or rather, heads, in the orchestra personnel, we discovered that about 75 per cent of the girls are blondes . . . Their attractive brunette conductor is, however, an exception . . .

FRAGRANT WHITE LILACS combined with gardenias fashion the lovely bouquet which Jane Potter Monroe of Commonwealth ave. is carrying to complement her wedding gown as she becomes the bride of Robert Goelet, Jr., of New York this afternoon.

The 4 o'clock ceremony is taking place in the picturesque Lady Chapel of the Church of the Advent, followed by a small reception at the Ritz-Carlton.

Given in marriage by her father, Dr. Kenneth Potter Monroe, the bride is wearing a gown of white lace, the skirt and train of which are fashioned of a series of graduating ruffles in Spanish motif . . . Her long tulle veil falls from a cap of matching lace.

Hope Tuck of Winchester, the maid of honor, is wearing a gown of deep rose with a taffeta bodice and filmy tulle skirt, a modish headdress of matching bow knots with tulle veiling and carrying spring flowers . . . The bridesmaids, dressed in similar outfits of shell blue, are the Misses Evelyn Gould of Chestnut st., and Janet Goodman of Westfield, N. J.

A COUPLE of roller skating tap dancers, Eleanor Batchelder, left, and Violet Sweetser, go through their routine at dress rehearsal for the Vincent Club show, "Tonight at Nine," which opens in John Hancock Hall next Thursday night. Newton Wedding

Fiora Mariotti Weds

A romance which began in the national capital, where the bride worked after graduating with highest honors from Wellesley College, culminated this morning in the marriage of Miss Fiora Letizia Mariotti to James Lawrence Houghteling, Jr.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Vincent Mariotti of Newton Highlands, was not only one of the most beautiful members of the senior class at Wellesley last year, but also won many outstanding academic honors. Her bridegroom is a Yale '41 graduate and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Houghteling of Washington.

Rev. Cornelius Trowbridge of Chestnut Hill and Dr. Thomas Hayes Procter of Wellesley College performed the 11 a. m. ceremony at the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill. A wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's mother.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. James Bissett Pratt of Williams College, the bride wore an informal wedding dress of pale gray silk. Her headdress was a tiara of white camellias and she carried a bouquet of white camellias, sweet peas and freesia, with a single pink camellia in the center.

Adele Mariotti, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the groom's sister, Margaret Houghteling, bridesmaid. The former wore a day time frock of old rose silk with a tiara and bouquet of spring flowers, the latter was dressed in turquoise blue with spring flowers.

William Jackson of Washington was best man and the ushers were Frederic Houghteling of Washington and David Pratt of Newton Highlands. The couple will reside in Washington.

Invasion Pattern?

THIRTY years ago, a little man fresh from years in the Orient warned the U. S. that a Japanese invasion of the Pacific Coast was more than a possibility. He even drew a blueprint of the probable form an invasion woud take.

This prognosticator was Gen. Homer Lea, a Denver-born citizen who became Dr. Sun Yat-sen's chief military adviser in China. He was variously dubbed a charlatan and sensation monger for his warning, but since his death in 1912 there has been increasing disposition among military scholars to call him a genius.

Right or wrong, his theory deserves consideration in 1942.

GEN LEA did not figure on the infinite possibilities of the airplane in his 1909 calculations. Great U. S. naval bases also have been developed on the west coast since his time. Basically, however, his analysis of weaknesses and strength still appears sound. His first consideration, as of all strategists was terrain.

He divided the Pacific coast into three major zones of jeopardy: (1) the Seattle-Portland area; (2) the Los Angeles area; (3) the San Francisco area.

He postulated that the first could be "cracked" by landings in the Grays Harbor-Willapa Bay section, where several rivers have stopped out an easy route east through the mountains. He envisioned the invaders striking north at Seattle from Centralia, south toward Portland.

SIMILAR landings north of Los Angeles and an encircling action was Lea's conception of the answer to the southern California problem.

After seizing the northern and southern areas, and obtaining control of their communication bottlenecks, the general thought the invaders would land north and south of San Francisco for a pincers movement against that central bastion.

IN CONTROL of the coastal strip west of the mountains, entrenched behind the peaks that stretch almost unbroken from Canada to Mexico in the Coastal, Cascade and Rocky Mountain ranges, the Japanese would await developments while the rest of the United States bled itself while trying to send troops and supplies through the western deserts, over its mountains and through its tangled forests.

Since Lea's day, the airplane has enormously enlarged the possibilities of offense and defense. Great airfields now protect the west coast. The Japanese have not taken Hawaii, a necessary prelude to mainland invasion in Lea's "blueprint."

MOTHER OF 4 HERE TELLS OF PEARL HARBOR

A Waltham mother and four children rested today at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Pedinelli, of Elm st., Waltham, after weeks of exciting adventure following the Jap attack which filled the air around their Pearl Harbor home with shells and bombs.

Mrs. Eglia Guiliani, 31, and the children, Aldo, Jr., 7; Mary Paula, 5; Sylvia Ann, 4, and Robert Wayne, 3, stood in front of their embattled home and watched the historic sneak attack.

"We had just finished breakfast when Junior ran into the house crying, 'Mama, mama, they've shootin' fireworks up in the air,'" Mrs. Guiliana recounted today.

HAD CLOSE CALL

"Everybody ran out on the lawn and my husband hurried away to the base. He was picked up by a truck with other sailors and stayed at his post until it was all over.

"An anti-aircraft shell struck the house next door and smashed a hole in the roof. That was the only close call we had.

"Everybody stayed outside during the raid, however, and watched the excitement. We could hear bombs exploding at the opposite end of the harbor and we saw great sheets of flame shooting up.

"We also saw two planes shot down in flames by the anti-aircraft fire. It wasn't until we saw the red sun markings on a plane which dove down within 100 feet that we knew it wasn't just maneuvers.

HAS TWO SOUVENIRS

"That night at 11 o'clock I heard light anti-aircraft fire. It lasted only two or three minutes and no bombs were dropped so far as I could find out."

Mrs. Guiliani brought back two souvenirs . . . a piece of exhaust pipe from a Japanese bomber and an anti-aircraft shell fragment.

She said life in Honolulu has settled down into a wartime routine and everything is "comfortable as you could expect."

Mrs. Guiliani formerly lived at New London, Ct., with her husband, a 40-year-old first class Navy carpenter.

BAN RADIO MANUFACTURE AFTER APRIL 22

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The War Production Board today ordered manufacture of radios and phonographs for civilian use discontinued after April 22.

Except for production of replacement parts, the entire facilities of the industry will be converted to war production.

WPB officials also estimated that 3,000,000 radio sets would be built between now and April 12, when manufacture for civilian use will stop. A small number of them will be frozen, but most of the sets will be delivered to retail stores to be sold on a "first come, first served" basis, it was said.

The order affects 55 companies manufacturing civilian receiving sets. In 1941 they employed approximately 31,000 persons, produced more than 13,000,000 sets, and did a business of approximately $240,000,000.

When the last of the 55 companies has turned out the last civilian radio, there will be in operation more than 60,000,000 radio sets in 87 per cent of American homes, according to WPB.

WPB officials said the provision for continued manufacture of replacement parts is designed to enable the bulk of existing home radios to be kept in efficient operating condition during the war.

When converted to war production, the radio industry will produce [illegible] to detect approaching enemy aircraft, and turn out transmitting and receiving equipment to enable the nation's armed forces—on land, sea and in the air—to communicate with each other.

WPB officials said military orders have already been placed for $1,000,000,000 worth of radio equipment.

Orders of approximately $400,000,000 are held by the 55 companies affected by today's directive, with the balance held by companies not usually engaged in the production of home radio sets, such as auto parts plants and similar manufacturers.

HENDERSON CHALLENGED ON RUBBER

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7 (INS)—Contending [illegible] Administration Leon Henderson's statements concerning the rubber shortage, Elliott E. Simpson, New York independent rubber dealer, today asserted there is enough rubber available in the United States to take care of the nation's civilian needs for the duration of the war.

Simpson, a director of the Dressage Rubber Co. of N. Y., one of the largest independent rubber firms in the country, has turned over an 18-page document on available rubber supplies to the Senate committee investigating national defense.

"I was astounded at Leon Henderson's statement concerning the rubber shortage situation," Simpson said. "There is absolutely no need for the government to consider the requisitioning of tires from private civilian cars.

HUES MISINFORMATION

"I can only assume that Mr. Henderson's sources of information are incompetent. There are millions of tons of scrap rubber available in the United States. The amount is sufficient to meet tire retreading needs for the duration.

"Mr. Henderson states that facilities would permit the reclaiming of only about 350,000 tons of rubber per year. He apparently overlooks the fact that these facilities can be increased to a million tons a year.

"[illegible] available in this country which no one in the government has mentioned are the crepesoled rubber shoes. There are between 25,000,000 and 50,000,000 pairs of crepesoled shoes

ENOUGH FOR 4 YEARS

"These shoes, if reclaimed, would produce enough crude rubber for the retreading of cars for the next 10 years.

"There has been terrible shortsightedness in Washington concerning the rubber situation. There is plenty of wild rubber available in Central as well as South America. There are millions of acres of guayule growing in nearby Mexico which could be made available.

Jack W[illegible] president of the Dressage Rubber Co. of Norwalk Ct., said that with 500 tons of crude rubber a month [illegible] could [illegible] in the [illegible].

Group Gin Rummy Varies Style of Play

Josephine Culbertson, famed authority on gin rummy, the fascinating card game now sweeping the country, tells you today when it pays to lose.

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Partnership gin rummy, with four, six or more players, is scored the same as the two-handed game, but there are several cases in which you do not play the same as you would in a two-handed game. In one unusual case it pays to lose!

It was explained yesterday that partners divide up and play separate two-handed games against members of the opposing team, but that all their results are pooled. Thus, in a four-handed partnership game between A-B and C-D if "A" beats "C" by 12 points, and "B" loses to "D" by 9 points, A-B win the hand by 3 points, and will later collect the 20-point box bonus.

Suppose you are playing in a four-handed game and, toward the end of a hand you find yourself with this holding, with a discard to make:

Spade K
Diamond 5-4-3-2
Spade 9-8-7
Heart 6—Spade 3—Club A

Ordinarily you would not draw. Knock with a count of 10 during the late stages of the game. However, in this case your partner has already finished his hand, and has won by 22 points. This changes the situation entirely.

KNOCK FOR VICTORY

If you knock, it does not greatly matter whether you lose the hand or not. The best your opponent can do is to reduce his own count to zero and score 10 points for beating you plus 10 points for the difference in scores. This will save him 20 points and your side will still win the hand by 2 points, getting the box bonus later.

Probably you will not lose by more than 12 or 13 points, while there is always the chance that you may win. If you do not knock and your opponent goes out, he may win the hand by as much as 30 points and your partnership will have lost the hand and the 20-point box bonus as well.

When you have a sure victory by knocking, and a possible defeat if you do not knock, naturally you knock and take the safe thing.

In any partnership game you should learn to play for the good of the whole team. One thing to remember is this: If you are dealt a very bad hand, start reducing it immediately, even if it lessens your chance of beating your opponent. The important thing is not to let him beat you by an enormous score, which would ruin the chance of your team. Suppose you are dealt this:

Spade K—Heart K
Diamond Q—Club 10—Heart 8
Spade 9—Diamond 9-7-6
Heart 5.

REDUCE COUNT

Playing a two-handed game, if the up-card or your opponent's first discard were a four or five, you would not pick it up. In partnership play, however, you would pick up any card worth 5 points or less, merely to reduce your count. With a better hand, in which there is less danger, you may play your normal game, however.

In partnership games there is often a question of how to apply the rules of two-handed Gin Rummy. I explained in a previous article that looking back at the discards is not allowed unless the players agree beforehand that it will be permitted.

In partnership games, the different players may have different preferences in this matter. "A" and "C" may be opposed in one game, and may wish to look at the discards; "B" and "D," who are opponents in the other game, may prefer not to. In this case, "A" and "C" have a perfect right to look at them, and "B" and "D" are equally entitled to forbid looking at them.

POINT OF ETIQUETTE

Here is a point of etiquette with respect to looking back at discards. If nothing has been said before the beginning of the hand, it is illegal to look at them, and it is not fair to ask your opponent in the middle of the hand, to let you look through the discards. You should wait and bring the matter up at the beginning of the next hand.

The fact that you wish to look at the discards means it is advantageous to you to do so, and therefore disadvantageous to your opponent. Any rule, to be fair, must work both ways.

The official Gin Rummy laws do not require that the cards be cut before they are dealt. Many people, in two-handed games, consider it a waste of time to cut the cards. However, it is good form to offer the deck to your opponent for a cut, when you are to deal, unless he somehow that he does not care to cut.

This is the last of a series of twelve articles by Josephine Culbertson outlining the Culbertson System of Playing Gin Rummy.

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Chairman Donald M. Nelson, of the War Production Board, declared today that "I have not recognized" any possibility that the war shipbuilding program might fall short of President Roosevelt's goal.

On the contrary, Nelson told questioners, "we're trying to increase the program."

Asked to comment on a statement yesterday by W. H. Harrison, WPB spokesman in London, that the President's "Blueprint for Victory" goal of 8,000,000 tons of shipping this year might not be realized, Nelson retorted:

"The shipping program has got to come through. The whole nation is at stake."

They're Out to Get a Victory

A Signal for Victory—In training at the Newport (R. I.) Naval Station, a quintet of Uncle Sam's future sea fighters spell out "V for Victory" for the photographer. All recruits must learn semaphore and pass tests before graduation.

OUR DAILY CITATION: To Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duggan, of Everett, whose thirteenth child was born a few days ago. Parents of nine sons and four daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Duggan are an outstanding couple, especially in this era of small homes and limited families.

THE United States Treasury Department is requesting all Americans to file their income tax returns NOW. Monday, March 16, is the deadline. There are not many days left.

This is a mandatory obligation for all single persons who earned $750 or more during 1941 and for all married persons who received twice that sum.

With billions needed for the nation's war effort, the Government cannot afford to be lenient with tax dodgers and shirkers.

Uncle Sam will collect the money that belongs to him, and any man or woman who thinks differently is apt to find himself sadly disillusioned later on.

Employers are legally bound to reveal the amount of the wage they paid the individual worker; so it is hardly an exaggeration to say that the salaried person who tries to avoid his tax debt by neglecting to file a return is risking a costly penalty and possibly a term in prison.

But why should any worth-while American want to be a tax dodger when his country is fighting for its very existence?

The men serving with General MacArthur in Bataan and the thousands of valiant soldiers and sailors who are resisting the enemy on the many other war fronts are doing everything that is asked of them.

We on the home front ought to be equally patriotic and useful.

MR. WALTER D. FULLER, publishing executive and chairman of the National Manufacturers' Association, recently told an Indianapolis audience that:

"Facts in the hands of paid propagandists in Washington are one thing. Facts in the hands of sincere, trained reporters of American journalism are another. One breeds distrust; the other breeds confidence.

"People who are treated as children may be expected to act as children. Either the American people are full-grown men and women who can face facts squarely—or they are not mature enough for the blessings of democracy."

That's the story—straight from the shoulder!

"Facts" handed out by New Deal propagandists and librarians in Washington are not "facts" at all, in the newspaper sense.

They are merely porridge and molasses for the "people," on whom the great founder of the Democratic Party, Thomas Jefferson, relied entirely.

The American people have a profound faith in the American press.

They have very little faith in paid political propagandists.

A DOOMED YOUNG MAN, 36-year-old W. L. Winsett of Memphis, Tenn., gives us this thought-provoking question:

"If you were the hopeless victim of cancer, had but a few months to live and were physically unable to work, how would you spend your time?"

The unfortunate Mr. Winsett says that he would like to receive the opinions of newspaper readers.

For, he explains:

"It's a tough feeling, sitting here day after day waiting to die, but I haven't let it get me down yet."

We are going to withhold our own comment until we hear from interested Bostonians and New Englanders.

Next week we shall publish some of the letters, omitting names and addresses if the writers so request.

SAVE FOR VICTORY is a slogan that appeals powerfully to every American citizen.

And because persons everywhere are doing precisely what the slogan says, important industries are continuing their operations in the face of shortage threats.

Items to save include: All paper except wax paper, cellophane and butcher paper; all metal except tin cans and razor blades; all rags and old clothes, and all rubber of any kind.

Paper is needed to wrap food, medical supplies and bullets for the armed forces.

Metal and rubber are necessary in increasing quantities to maintain a steady flow of tanks and planes from assembly lines.

Rags are required by mechanics in the service, and wool from old clothing is re-worked for the use of soldiers and sailors.

Don't throw anything of value away during this crisis.

CUPID IS BUSIER than ever before in Boston. He is so busy that the marriage rate has risen more than 33 per cent during the three months of the war.

This is hopeful news. It is proof that the average American has unbounded confidence in the ability of the United States to crush its enemies and to write a peace that will be conducive to the establishment of homes and the raising of families.

The Spring and Summer will undoubtedly see an even larger increase in the number of weddings, for Army regulations have been relaxed to allow enlisted men to marry without permission from their superior officers.

Furthermore, married men are now eligible for enlistment or re-enlistment in the Army if they sign affidavits to the effect that their dependents do not rely upon them for support.

On The Side

I would that this woman's head
Were less golden about the hair,
I would her lips were less red
And her face less deadly fair.
—OWEN MEREDITH.

THE POEM was written about 75 years ago, indicating the too golden-haired synthetic blonde with the mussy make-up is not of recent origin. Nobody can blame a brunette if she wants to become a blonde. But all of us can wish that the transformation of a brunette to a blonde would not be so apparent even to the inexperienced eyes of men. There's something about a poor job of hair dyeing that makes a woman look a little cheap.

SAYS RALPH SLATER: "It is my ambition to hypnotize somebody with a view to bringing out hidden dramatic talent which would bring them fame or fortune on the stage or screen." Seems an idea for a truly noble expedient. Maybe I'll have Mr. Slater hypnotize me. I played in a couple of shows at college. Of course, if I became a film star the producers would have some difficulty in finding stories to fit my type but that would be their problem.

SIDELIGHTS: Some people seem young in their seventies; others impress you as being aged though in their forties. Why? It was Robert Updegraff who said: "Growing old is usually the result of doing the same old things and thinking the same old thoughts, following the same old rutted road with head down and spirits dragging" . . . "Your photograph makes you look like a foreman in a steel factory," writes a Chicagoan. Well, what of it? What's wrong with looking like a foreman in a steel factory? It might even be an advantage when you're visiting Pittsburgh . . . One of the most popular barber shops in Michigan is "Mack and Dixies" in Dearborn. Dixie is a lady. Being shaved by a lady barber is an experience I still have to look forward to.

BRIEFLY: How to smoke a cigarette in bed, according to a Chicago subscriber, is: "Hold the cigarette above knuckle in between third and fourth finger. After each puff hang over side of bed. Even if you fall asleep the cigarette will not drop out of your hand. It will burn down to your fingers and wake you up" . . . "Have there been any songs about girls named Carrie?" asks an Albany, N. Y., client named Carrie. All we know of are "Good morning, Carrie" and "We Had to Carry Carrie to the Shore 'Cause Carrie Couldn't Carry Any More" . . . Writes a young woman of Pittsburgh: "I am 5 feet 11¾ inches tall and I do not care to join any club of tall girls. Nor do I care to join the We Wanna Get Married Club. I don't want to be married. I don't even want to be in love. I am enjoying myself all right as it is." This subscriber's attitude toward love is very unusual, especially for a Pittsburgh girl.

PLEASE NOTE: Annually a Miss America is chosen. Also a Mrs. America. And a Mr. America. But so far there never has been selected a Mr. and Mrs. America. There should be such a contest to select the country's handsomest couple. Think you would have any chance to win lady? How does your husband look in a bathing suit? . . . Hal Jensen, who so strongly criticized Glenn Miller's band, thus arousing the anger of a feminine client of Chicago who signed herself "Seventeen," has joined the Army. Mr. Jensen now regrets having made his criticism so strong and says if he knew where "Seventeen" lived he would on his next leave go to her house, get under her window and sing "What More Can I Say Now That I've Said I'm Sorry."

FILM-RADIO STAR BING CROSBY
Reader Wants Him to Head Pipe Smokers' Club

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: "I nominate Bing Crosby for president of the Pipe Smokers of America," writes a Chicago pipe-smoker. "I'll bet you can't name as good a man for president of the Cigar Smokers of America." Is that so? How about General Douglas MacArthur? . . . First Americans killed in World War I were Pvts. James B. Chesham, Evansville, Ind.; Thomas F. Enright, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Merle D. Hay, Glidden, Ia.—all members of the 16th Infantry. These boys were killed near Blathemant, France, Nov. 23, 1917 . . . Is claimed by many astrologers that the happiest unions result when Aquarians (Jan. 22-Feb. 20) marry Leos. (July 24-Aug. 22). It might be true. Will check on it a little . . . "I hate to kiss a girl whose face is smeared with too much lipstick," says a Milwaukee bachelor. Aw, come on, Mister, don't be a coward. Don't let a little thing like that stop you. However, if, after you have planted a kiss of honest affection on the lady's lips, she says: "Oh, now you've spoiled my make-up" it proves she doesn't love you. And you should get another girl.

PASSING BY: W. C. Fields, Jr., son of the well-known perennially impish comedian. Fields, Jr., is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. That's a nice little organization. However, the best college fraternity, as everybody knows, is Psi Upsilon . . . Mrs. Ludwig Lauerhass. Formerly Betty Bronson, film star. Remember her in "Peter Pan?" . . . Blue Barron. One of America's 4269 band leaders. Mr. Barron is also something of a bowling expert. He claims to have bowled a perfect 300 on four occasions . . . Fred Purner. Once a San Francisco sportscribe. Now a press agent, poor fellow. Mr. Purner had some reputation as a singer in his newspaper days and is best remembered for his rendition of that touching ballad, "Adam Sinned Because Adam Had No Mammy."

BRIEFLY: A monument to a hen. That is what can be seen in little Compton, R. I., where the Rhode Island red breed of hen originated . . . "What are the three L's in a girl's character that make her popular with men?" asks a Chicagoan. I guess this subscriber is thinking of Lively, Lovable and Lookable.

POLICE COMMISSIONER TIMILTY is on the road to health at Brooks Hospital, but his throat ailment still prevents his talking with telephone callers . . . The commissioner has been advised to take a rest . . . However, a great deal of extra work awaits him in Boston . . . His Sunday night parties for the soldiers and sailors were becoming highlights in the lives of service men in this neck of the woods . . . But the Cohan courage is the same as always, tops . . . The great arranger, Fletcher Henderson, is doing piece-work for Benny Goodman's band again. If Benny and the arranger who helped make him "King of Swing" can collaborate completely again, watch the resurgence of the Goodman outfit—possibly to the No. 1 spot of all the bands. JOEL SEES SLIGHT IN BILLING

By Loudla O. Parsons

Joel McCrea

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.—Joel McCrea is [illegible] playing opposite Veronica Lake in "I Married a Witch" because he felt he had been neglected in the matter of billing in "Sullivan's Travels." Buddy De Sylva, who is a very fair man, believes Joel's complaint is justified, but he says Paramount has tried to rectify it by apologizing and changing the billing wherever it is possible. Buddy said it was just a mistake.

With Joel adamant in his refusal to play in the coming up Preston Sturges movie, Frederic March may accept the offer to co-star with the Lake gal. Freddie liked the first part of the script well enough to ask for [illegible] completed treatment.

GEORGE RAFT'S idea of entertaining the boys in the camps with sports events went over so well the Army and Navy—in the future—will officially present the Raft caravan of sports. George has been made a member of the Victory Committee and has been put in charge of sports for the camps—a nice compliment and a well deserved one, too, for George spent his own money to transport the fighters to the camps.

Off the record, I admire George would give anything he owns to be able to play the role of Clint Maroon in "Saratoga Trunk." He is hoping Hal Wallis will give him that role when he returns to Warners, but it is my belief the search is already been made for the Texan and that Ann Sheridan is set for Clio

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: All this talk about Cary Grant and Barbara Hutton having said adieu to romance is a lot of nonsense. Barbara returned today from six weeks in Palm Beach and, while she was in Florida, Cary called her practically every night. She chose a time for her Florida trip while he was busy working on "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" in Columbia and while her son, Lance, was in New York with his father.

I won't be surprised if she and Cary marry—for certainly this is no sudden infatuation. They've been in love for more than [illegible]

No Pants Cuffs for Mahatma

IF DOING without cuffs on your pants will win the war I guess Mahatma Gandhi should be a big help to the Allies.

THE PRIORITIES have also got vests and lapels. I've come to the conclusion that you don't need a lot of things that are necessary.

IN THE last war we had a slogan "Give Until It Hurts," but some philanthropic patriots had a very low financial fusing point

I THINK Secretary Morgenthau will take care of that situation if he can get a retread on the Congressional rubber stamp. The government will take everything and give you back what you don't want.

DAZZY VANCE

Daz Faster Than Feller---'Big Poison'

SARASOTA, Fla., March 7—There was a picture of Max Surkont in the Tampa Tribune. Max is the 20-year-old Pawtucket giant making his second stab at a pitching berth with the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Pete.

The caption read: "Manager Billy Southworth says Surkont is as fast as Feller."

"Shucks," said Paul Waner working out with the Sox here. "Let me tell you about somebody who was real fast. Ever hear of Dazzy Vance?"

Who hadn't?

"Ol' Daz," Paul warmed up with a gleam in his eye, "had the fastest ball I've ever seen. (Paul has been in the majors since 1926.)

"I'll admit I never could hit it.

"Why he'd start it up over his head, and the way it would swoop down you'd swear it was going right past your ankles. But it would whistle right above the knees for a perfect strike.

"I had all kinds of trouble with him when I first broke in," Paul admitted.

"But you had good success with him," one of his listeners ventured.

"Know why?" said Paul, and he sat back to unfold his story.

Vance was with Brooklyn then, at the height of his career. Paul was a rookie sensation with Pittsburgh. Unlike most others in the league, Waner could hit Daz's sharp-breaking curve, and on this particular day got two hits against Vance who admired the kid so much he invited him to dinner.

Ol' Daz Finally Gets One Through

"We were sitting around with coffee and cigars after dinner," Paul went on, "kidding around a bit."

"'What'd you hit off me today?' Daz asked.

"Your curve," I admitted honestly, knowing he wouldn't believe me. 'I'll admit I can't hit your fast ball, Daz,' I said, 'but I sure can murder your curve.'"

"Now ol' Daz took great pride in that curve," Paul continued "and he glared at me. I could read his mind through his eyes. 'Hit my curve ball, can you, you fresh busher.'"

"Well, the ruse worked," Waner went on. "Forever after, whenever the count was close, Daz would always curve me, hoping he'd strike me out so he could give me the horse laugh.

"But I wore him out. Broke up game after game on him, even though I would be hitting some of them off my shoetops.

"Finally Daz started to slip, and the Dodgers sent him to the Cards. He was getting to be sort of a cousin to me then and on this particular day he sneaked that horsewhip curve right past me for a third strike.

"Well," Paul laughed. "He jumped and hollered and shouted and gave me a real good going over.

"'Hit my curve ball, can you,' he bellowed, 'Why didn't you hit that one?'"

* * *

Easy to Follow Feller's Pitches

"I reminded him that I had been hitting his curve ball for the past couple of years," Paul chuckled, and Ol' Daz came back with "Yeh, but I didn't have a good one then."

"Ever hit against Bob Feller?" Waner was asked.

"Yeh, last spring over in Cuba" (Paul was with the Dodgers then).

"Have any trouble with him?"

"Very little," Waner answered. "He was fast, real fast, I'll admit, but you could see the pitch coming all the way. It was easy to follow. But you couldn't see Daz's until it was right on top of you, too late to do anything but poke at it."

Daz is one of Waner's favorite baseball characters. Paul lives in Sarasota during the winter but takes time off from his golfing and fishing to visit Daz at his hotel in Homassassa Springs, up Clearwater way.

"He has a nice place," said Paul, "but it was 17 miles in the backwoods off the main road. He was sick there a couple of years ago, you may remember, and his hotel business was going to pot.

"I was afraid he was going to wind up broke, but then the state put a new road through right in front of Ol' Daz's hotel, and business picked up so much Daz is in the pink again."

"Say," said Paul as a parting shot, "If you fellows want a sure-fire hit at your Baseball Writers dinner next winter, get hold of Ol' Daz. He's the best story teller in the world."

You don't do so badly yourself, Paul.

FIRST CALL — Bill Butland, 6-foot, 5-inch side-armer, was named today as the first Red Sox hurler to face a major league rival. Sox opened a two-game series with Giants at Miami.

Sox Open Series With Giants Today

By HERB FINNEGAN

MIAMI, Fla., March 7 — Two of our favorite young Red Sox pitchers are scheduled to work against the Giants here in the [illegible] weekend games. They are Bill Butland, who was due to go today, and Tex Hughson, due to go tomorrow.

They will toil three innings apiece and although the games may mean little to the outside world they mean everything to these lads. The boys who, like so many of their predecessors, were afflicted with sore arms their first year with the Sox.

Butland came to camp in '40 [illegible] winning 19 games for Minneapolis. He stood 6-5 and threw side [illegible] so you can imagine the consternation he caused among right-handed batters. He looked like an improved edition of Howard Ehmke of old.

FUTURE STILL AHEAD

Whether he tried too hard down here or whether he was worked too hard in practice isn't clear, but the kid came up with a rip in his shoulder and was useless the rest of the season. Finally he was wished on to Scranton.

Dr. Tommy Richards okayed his arm the following winter, when Bill was brought on to Boston for a check-up, and so the kid reported nappy as a lark last spring. He didn't have any arm trouble this time, but he found himself in Louisville, much to his surprise, before the Sox broke camp.

Perhaps that Louisville visit was all for the best. Like Emerson Dickman, Lefty Judd, Bill Fleming and others he was used regularly as a starting pitcher by Manager Bill Burwell, learned to pace himself and had a most successful season. His won-lost record was only 12-11, but Louisville didn't get many runs for its pitchers, and it occassioned no great surprise when Bill lost seven one-run games in a row.

"I didn't dare let loose early last season," said Bill today, "because I feared a recurrence of the shoulder injury. They told me to loaf all the previous winter to

Kid Snowballers Come Off Second Best to Waner

A bunch of Oklahoma City kids, celebrating a snowstorm, turned their barrage on a quiet looking guy who drove up to the house next door. The fire was returned with considerable speed and accuracy. Beating a hasty retreat, the kids asked the neighbor's name. The reply was "Lloyd Waner."

HOLMES' BELTS MAKE CASEY HAPPY PILOT

By BILL GRIMES

SANFORD, Fla., March 7—One of those rare grins adorned the usually grim and leathery visage of "Ole' Casey Stengel today after another exhibition of power hitting—something which long has been missing in the tribal ranks.

Newest to come up with some fancy slugging was Tommy Holmes, the rookie from Flatbush, who in his first appearance in a Braves uniform powdered a fast ball clean over the right center field fence.

It was the first ball hit over that barrier thus far this season and young Tommy belted a couple of line-drive singles for good measure.

MURDERERS' ROW?

And it was only the day previous, if you remember, that old Ernie "Snozzle" Lombardi—refugee from beerlands of Zinzinnati—plastered pellets all over the lot in such an exhibition of power-hitting as has seldom been seen.

So this is why "Ole" Case is grinning. Why, it almost amounts to a downright laugh. For if it keeps up, the Braves have visions of having what the Yanks used to affectionately term a "murderers' row."

Rain held up a morning workout but the sun came out strong by mid-afternoon and the squad went through just about the best session they have had in the South.

Among the newest arrivals in camp was Alva Javery, who missed the boat or perhaps the train) from South station last Monday. His excuse? He thought railroad time was one hour behind war time and arrived 50 minutes after the Duffy Lewis special had pulled out.

The others were Chucker Jim Hickey of South Weymouth, Jimmy Wallace, who used to pitch for Bridgeport, and Whitey Wietlmann, the utility infielder, who this year stands a good chance to ease off his familiar position on the bench.

All pitchers now are in camp with the exception of Lou Tost and he's due in any time now. The squad now numbers 25, with 15 pitchers, five catchers, three infielders and two outfielders taking their daily swings.

Angott Wins Award Over Montgomery

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Fighting probably the greatest bout of his seven-year career, Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott pounded out a 12-round victory over his No. 1 challenger, Bob Montgomery, in a bruising brawl in Madison Square Garden. Angott weighed 139; Montgomery 135½.

By the victory he made it two decisions in a row over the Philadelphian and cleared the decks for a planned lightweight title defense against Allie Stolz of Newark in May.

TIME OUT FOR INDIANS—Dartmouth's great basketball team stops today for lunch at Warmuth's, en route to Providence where the Indians play Brown tonight. Crimson Leathernecks Choice Over Yale Five

Four winters ago, three Mid-Westerners, a Brooklynite, and a Gloucester lad composed what at that time was considered the best freshman basketball team ever to play at Harvard. Today, with the climactic game against Yale scheduled for tonight at the Harvard gym, three had enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps, another had applied for enlistment, and the fifth was also veering towards the "leathernecks."

Since they were freshmen, these five boys, now seniors, have played almost always as a unit. They include Joe Romano, Brooklyn, high scorer until he injured a knee four weeks ago that put him out for the season; Ed Rothschild, Winnetka, Ill.; Ed Buckley, Ely, Minn.; Capt. Chris Finegan, Gloucester; and Billy Webber, Des Moines, Ia. The first three have been accepted by the Marine Corps, Finegan expects to be accepted today, and Webber may also take the plunge today.

Earl Brown's team is favored to top the Elis tonight, mostly on the strength of the surprising victories over Penn and B. U. within the past week.

The starting Harvard five will include Hugh Hyde and Finegan at guards, "Bunks" Burdite at center, Ed Buckley and Ed Rothschild at forwards. Billy Wegger, alternate starting forward, may begin on either flank.

The Elis, cellar-dwellers in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, include Al Ingley and Frank Kearney at forwards, Aussie Norton at center, Capt. Charles Seelbach and Tom Vogt at guards.

Because the start of his veterans' service has been deferred until graduation, Earl Brown will avoid a mild case of apoplexy. Besides Romano, Earl has lost the services of two boys who put the "z" in Harvard's zip, "Chick" Lutz and Don Lutze. On the basketball court tonight and on land or seas against the Axis, the motto of the "leatherneck" quintet is—"five for victory."

LOWELL SKIERS PROVE GOOD ECONOMISTS

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

The myth that skiing is expensive has certainly been exploded by the Lowell Ski Club, called the Black and Blue Trail Smashers. It costs each member of this organization only $1.50 for an entire weekend of skiing, meals and fun.

This ingenious group have certainly balanced their skiing budget to the very fraction of a cent. They rent an old farm house at New Hampton, N. H., with sleeping accommodations for 32, and hire their own cook. This abode is filled every week-end. The food is not only good, but there is plenty of it and the members really live well. To our knowledge, no other ski club in the country maintains such high standards at such low costs. Instead of running courses in skiing, the Black and Blue Trail Smashers should conduct classes in economics.

TOP FLIGHT GIRL SKIERS

Founder of the club and originator of its name is Harry Pollard, Jr., of Lowell, who has been president of the group during its seven years of existence. An energetic worker, Harry is also very active in the United States Eastern Amateur Association. Treasurer of the club is Sayles White, a Class A racer.

Secretary for the skiers is Natalie Cate, a girl who bids fair to soon win high honors in the racing world. She placed high up in several big races last winter, as well as this season. Another top-flight feminine schusser of the club is Lucy Hawke, a consistent performer.

Affairs of this organization are really governed by its board of directors composed of Harry Pollard, Jr., Gus Gay, Sayles White, Harry Churchill and Bill Thompson.

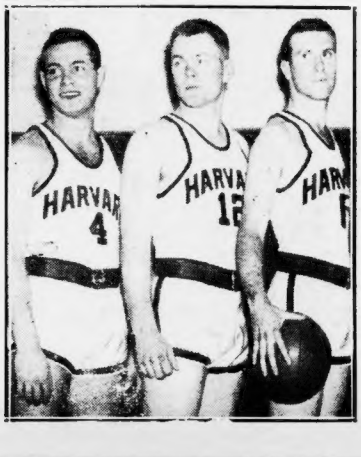
A crack racer of the Black and Blues is Gus Gay of Reading. This chap has competed in several races and has been a winner of some of the slaloms held in the Newfound region. This tall schusser took lessons from Charlie Proctor a few years ago. He is the leader of the Newfound Region Ski Patrol.

SAFETY FIRST CLUB

Several of the members also belong to the National Ski Patrol which is doing such grand work everywhere. Pollard is section chief for the Newfound Region. Others carrying on the good work are Harry Churchill, Phil Parker and Gus Gay.

The Black and Blue Trail Smashers will sponsor the women's United States Eastern championships in Waterville Valley this month. The downhill and slalom will both be contested on the wide, sweeping Tecumseh trail in this snow valley.

Last year's championships were one of the best events of the competitive season.



HOOP COURT to sea corps is the saga of these three senior members of the Harvard basketball team. With one other senior teammate, and possibly two, they have enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps. Left to right: Joe Romano, Ed Buckley and Capt. Chris Finegan.

SOX OPEN TWO-GAME SERIES WITH GIANTS

protect my arm and I wasn't hardened when I reported. Then, before I really got my feet on the ground, I was released.

"This past winter I did what I thought best for myself. I got a job in a distilling company at home (Terre Haute) up-ending 500-ton tanks of alcohol eight hours a day. As a result, I'm stronger than I ever was in my life. I'm ready this time."

He looks ready. He's been snapping the ball across the plate as if he was serving it up with a bullwhip. If he's used wisely this year he's going to help the Sox a lot. Only 23, his future is still ahead of him.

Hughson may be in the same boat Butland was a year ago. You remember Tex. The 6—3¼ Texan who was a mid-summer sensation last year after being resurrected from Louisville.

They had a plethora of pitchers in camp here last spring and Tex wasn't given much of a chance. But when he won seven straight at Louisville and Sox Ace Jack Wilson wasn't winning his 20 as annually advertised, Tex came back up in a hurry.

He was a wow from the start.

For a month he and Dick Newsome used to form a winning and euphonious doubleheader combination—Hughson and Newsome.

But Tex, like so many other winners, was used as a starting pitcher, then as relief, and finally started against the Browns on a rainy day fit only for water polo.

That was the day he came up with the sore arm. It was a Friday. He relieved the next Sunday against the A's, then started against the Yanks on a Wednesday. Small wonder his aching arm forced him to leave the box in the third inning.

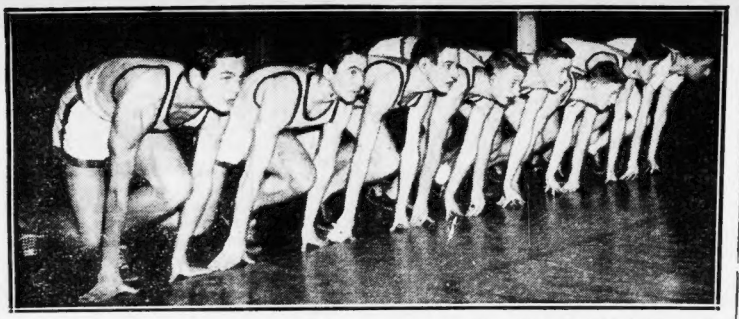
Tex had a 5-3 record with the Sox, and he was there only one month—from July 6 to August 6—so you can see how much he was worked.

After a series of treatments, he tried to come back early in September, but it was no go. Finally he packed up and went home.

One month before he came down here he started throwing easily in his native Texas. But he let up when the weather turned cold. He hasn't thrown a ball real hard yet in the South, but promises to do so tomorrow against the Giants.

It will be interesting to see how both kids make out. Great prospects both. If they come through and are used intelligently, the Sox will have an A-1 pitching staff.

If they are tossed to the wolves and suffer further injury to their arms, they ought to appeal to Landis.



ON YOUR MARK!—Eight youthful tracksters, wearing the colors of Medford High School will be out seeking to upset the applecart today in Andover's 18th annual interscholastic meet at Andover. Medford, second to Rindge all year, is again the dark horse. They are, left to right, Robert Pacious, George Morehouse, Fritz Sabbow, Jr., John Newby, Bill McCrystal, Bruce Mather, Bill Hardy and Everett Ingalls.

HARVARD BOY ENTERS A. A. U. BOXING TRIALS

Second cousin to a famous diplomat in ordinary life, Johnny Bullitt, Harvard junior from Portland, Me., is second cousin only to a tiger in the squared ring. Defeated last year in his bid for the National A. A. U. lightweight title, Johnny announced his return to the fistic wars yesterday afternoon, when he entered the 135-pound class in the N. E. A. A. U. trial bouts Monday night at the Arena.

The 20-year-old redhead began boxing at the age of seven under the tutelage of his deceased father, Keith Bullitt, 135-pound Kentucky State titlist 40 years ago. Moving from Seattle, Wash. his birthplace, at six, to Portland, Me., Johnny began spending his summers in Los Angeles. From the age of 12 to 16 years, he learned boxing under Bob McAllister, old-time lightweight, in the Los Angeles A. C.

RUNNERUP LAST YEAR

Billy Taylor, former professional, was his instructor at Loomis school in Windsor, Ct., which he attended for three years.

"He taught me more than anyone else, with the exception of my present coach, Henry Lamar."

For several weeks at Loomis, he also had the tutelage of "Mushy" Callahan, 37-year-old former U. S. junior welterweight king.

Young Bullitt's first public fight took place in the Mass. State 135-pound competition in January of last year, in which he finished runner-up to Steve Bomal of Lowell. On March 20 he won the final go in his class at the annual N. E. Traffic Ass'n bouts by a K. O. March 28 he won the N. E. A. A. U. junior lightweight belt. Three days later came his big disappointment. But Jessups, his first colored opponent, gave him a beating. By his own admission Jessups knocked him down six times before the bout was stopped in the third round.

"I was so tired I couldn't keep my arms up," said Johnny. "I'll do better this year."

MALDEN BOY WINS HURDLES AT ANDOVER

ANDOVER, March 7—A total of 21 schools turned out for the 18th renewal of the annual Andover interscholastic track meet this afternoon here at the Case Memorial building.

Rindge Tech, undefeated in indoor competition this year, was favored to take top honors. Medford, runnerup to Tech in both the Northeastern and State meets, Lawrence and Malden were the dark horses.

Andy Lipnosky of Malden took the first event of the day when he won easily from Gordon Thomas of Newton in the 40-yard hurdles. Lipnosky covered teh distance in 5 2-5 seconds. Dobert Mikeneas of Lynn Classical and Roland Dube of Lawrence followed in that order.

Tom Smith of Weymouth turned in the first upset when he copped the 40-yard dash in 4 4-5 seconds. Smith just nosed out Charles Johnson of Brookline in a very close finish with Calvin Dolan of Lawrence and Charles Hyde of Newton following.

Ralph King of Rindge, favored to win both the dash and the 300, failed to place in the dash after winning his first trial heat and semifinal.

Secret Contracts Blasted by Landis

CHICAGO, March 7 (AP)—Secret baseball contracts—the kind in which a college baseball player usually gets financial assistance for promising to join the paying club after graduation, are legally worthless, says Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Landis made the ruling in a case involving Anthony Ravich and the New York Yankees of the American League.

In a statement accompanying the ruling, Landis said all club officials know such pacts have no standing in court but he wondered if the college players knew it.

"However, there is and can be no questin whatsoever, that these legally worthless documents do serve a purpose—first, of deluding many of the players signing them into an erroneous belief that they are obligated and second, of establishing a moral obligation to go through with the agreement," Landis' statement read.

IMPOSSIBLE TO CHECK

The commissioner quoted George Weiss, vice-president of the New York club and general manager of its farm system, as saying that the agreement with Ravich was not certified to the commissioner's office within 20 days as prescribed by baseball law because of the "effect it would have on his college athletic career."

Players, publicly receiving such financial aid either directly or by their parents, customarily are declared ineligible for further college competition as was Lou Boudreau, now manager of the Cleveland Indians by the University of Illinois in 1938.

Landis pointed out that sub-rosa pacts made it impossible for his office to check the number of players controlled by the clubs and often enabled those clubs to violate the player limit.

The commissioner said there had been suggestions that such secret documents as the scout's agreement to pay Ravich $1000 for his promise to sign a Yankee farm contract upon graduation be filed confidentially with his office to enable the student to continue his collegiate career.

DENIED CHANCE TO RESIGN

"That, of course, is inconceivable," Landis added, "as it would include the entire baseball organization in the false pretense, in which the player and the club have engaged, that the player is honestly complying with college athletic eligibility rules, which in fact are being deliberately violated.

"The obvious impropriety of that situation is in no wise diminished by the fact that college athletic officials often are fully cognizant of that violation and are participants in them."

The commissioner declared that in the future clubs and affiliates which signed undergraduates to secret contracts would be denied the chance to re-sign them after the players had been declared free agents and that in addition the clubs and officers involved would be fined.

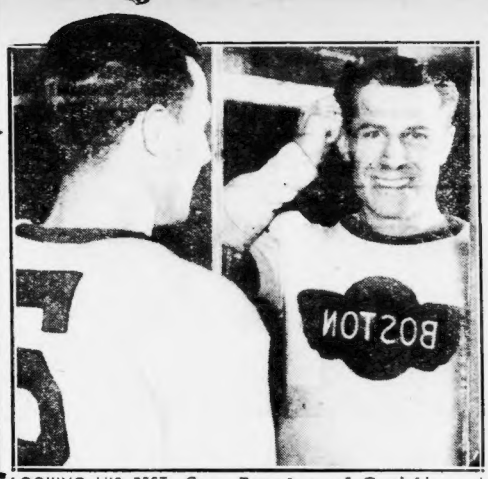
SUNDAY ADVERTISER



LOOKING HIS BEST—Gerry Desrosiers, of Cambridge and Olympics' right winger, slicks down his hair prior to taking the ice tonight at the Garden where fans will honor him. The night has been set aside as "Gerry Desrosiers Night." Olympics play the New York Rovers in Eastern League contest.

OLYMPICS TACKLE ROVERS AS FANS HONOR DESROSIERS

Gerry Desrosiers, 27-year-old Cambridge athlete, and a veteran of five years with the Boston Olympics, will be honored tonight at the Garden when his mates open a five-game home stay against the New York Rovers in an Eastern League contest.

The night has been designated as "Gerry Desrosiers' Night," and a large following of Cambridge residents will turn out to pay homage to the young Cantab who is the oldest player in point of service with the Olympics.

Jerry Bauer

Oddly enough, Gerry is celebrating his fifth year and he is the wearer of the No. 5 jersey.

Both his fellow towners and Walter Brown will award the former Boston University captain a number of gifts for his fine play throughout his career with the Pics. Gerry Has long been one of the leading scorers of the club and at present is leading his mates in assists and is second to Ray Chaieson in total number of points.

When the Pics take to the ice tonight, they will also introduce a new rookie. He is young Jerry Bauer, younger brother of the famed Bobby of the Krauts of the Bruins.

Jerry has been playing with the Junior Olympics this winter while attending Lowell Textile, but Coach Harrington has added the youthful Canadien to the senior roster in the hopes of strengthening his battered squad.

The Pics return to the Garden rink tomorrow afternoon to meet the River Vale Skeeters. Junior Olympics are also scheduled to play, taking on the New York Exchange Brokers in a preliminary tilt.

Bruins Tackle Les Canadiens In Montreal

Unexpectedly confronted with an opportunity to finish in second place in the National Hockey League championship race, and mathematically even to take the title, the Boston Bruins will engage in two week-end games of tremendous importance. They play Les Canadiens at Montreal tonight and Detroit at Detroit tomorrow, and a double win would bring about possibilities of a sensational windup to the League race.

The Bruins players got a tremendous lift over their 5-3 win over Toronto, and the results of Thursday when Rangers, Leafs and Chicago all were beaten. As it is now, Bruins with six games to play and two games in hand, trail Rangers by six points and with a game in hand trail Toronto Leafs by three points. Rangers and Toronto are playing a home and home week-end series.

The Bruins had figured their immediate goal was third place, which they hoped to clinch in next Tuesday's Boston game against Chicago. They now have two games in hand over the Hawks and lead them by five points. The whole season was pointing up to the game with the Hawks Tuesday, but now Bruins realize they have a further goal, if they can play the hockey they did against Toronto.

After the week-end two games, Bruins will have four to play.

Marshall, chief of staff; Lieut.-Gen. L. McNair, chief of ground forces; (standing) Maj.-Gen. J. T. McNarney, in charge of War Department reorganization, and Maj.-Gen. B. Somervell, chief of supplies.

Feud Off—Two members of the famous feuding families, the Hatfields and McCoys, take the pledge to bury the axe—in the Axis—by joining the Marines. They are Cabel T.
